Puppy Application

.....Barryfree@yahoo.com

Thank you for taking the time to fill this questionnaire out completely. A Labrador can be a new family member requiring much attention, nurturing and training. Be sure you have time to devote to early socialization and training for this loyal and intelligent working breed. I look forward to speaking with you promptly. Barry

Briefly describe your experience with dogs:
Why are you considering a Labrador Retriever dog?

Do the adults in family work outside of home? ( Y / N ) If so what is the longest amount of time the dog will be left alone?
How much time do you believe it will take to care for your dog per day/per week?
Are you committed to feeding, exercise, training, grooming, playing &amp; socializing activities?
How do all members of your family feel about getting a Labrador Retriever Dog?
Do you live in a house or an apartment? Labrador Retrievers bark and are not ideal for apartment living.
Will your dog be inside or outside when you are away? ( I / O )
Will your dog be confined/crated when you are away during the day? (Y/N) This is not a bad thing as long as there is someone to let the dog out at certain intervals.
